Another Bunch Arrives On the Sybil.

[Special Dispatch to Daily Alaskan.]
Whitehorse, June 17.—The Sybil arrived here at 3 o'clock this afternoon with 50 passengers for Skagway.

The Whitehorse is due to arrive Friday morning. She will have a large passenger list which should catch the Friday morning train. The Columbian and Casca should be in time to catch the Saturday morning train.

The first boat to sail from this place after the Yukoner tomorrow, will be the Whitehorse. The date of her sailing will depend upon her arrival, but it will probably be Friday evening.

The Whitehorse was at Selkirk, coming up stream, at 9 o'clock this morning and the Casca was at Stewart, at 9:30.

The Dawson arrived at Dawson last night, and the Selkirk passed Big Salmon, going down stream, at 4 o'clock a. m. The Canadian passed Hootalinqua at 9 a. m.

The water reached 24 inches above low water this morning, and the temperature at this place has been above 80 all day.

HONOR HIM

Will Erect Monument for Peter Buschmann.

The Indians of Wrangell are arranging to erect one of the finest totem poles in Alaska to mark the place where Peter Buschmann, who recently committed suicide at Tacoma, lie. This is an honor never bestowed upon any white man by the natives of Alaska, and illustrates that the Indian is not so deficient in sentiment as has been supposed. Buschmann had many friends among the natives of Alaska, made by his long residence among them.

BOYCE BEGINS CRUSADE FOR ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

District Attorney Would Have Sunday Closing and Other Laws Observed. Enjoins Gambling House at Douglas

[Special Dispatch to Daily Alaskan.]

Juneau, June 17.—District Attorney J. J. Boyce has begun a crusade for the enforcement of the law in Alaska. He has issued a printed circular to all the saloonmen within his district, which will be sent out soon, calling their attention to the sections of the laws which he says are being violated and which it is his purpose to enforce. As an earnest of his intention, he yesterday applied for and secured an injunction from the district court restraining Samuel Glus, proprietor of the Douglas opera house, from running gambling games in his place of business. The injunction is only temporary at the present time, and the order is returnable June 22, when it will be decided as to whether or not the injunction will be made perpetual. It is said that this drastic action was taken because of the open boast that no jury would convict a man for gambling at Douglas. The injunction has resulted in the closing of the gambling games in that town and the gamekeepers cannot open them again without being guilty of contempt of court.

The action of the district attorney has caused consternation among the saloonmen of Juneau, who held a meeting last night and appointed a committee to wait upon him. They especially complain of the intention to compel them to close their places of business on Sunday. The committee called upon Mr. Boyce today and urged that should he carry into effect the policies outlined in his circular it would be disastrous to their business. They urged particularly that he desist from the determination to enforce the Sunday law. The committee got little satisfaction. Mr. Boyce stated plainly that the law would be enforced.

The next step is waited for with increasing interest.

HERE AGAIN

A. A. Richards Visits His Old Haunts.

A. A. Richards, who was deputy marshal at Dyea in the early days when that place was an active competitor with Skagway for the honor of being the metropolis of Lynn canal, is in the city meeting old friends and making new ones. After Mr. Richards shall have closed up some property interests in this section of the country, he will go to Kyak, where he will investigate the oil fields.

Mr. Richards, with his brother and sister, who were with him at Dyea, are now residents of Boise City, Idaho, where they are all doing well.

GOOD WORK

E. T. Botsford Does Much for North Country.

Perhaps no one in the country is doing so much to bring this great North country to the attention of the people than is E. T. Botsford, president of the Ladue Company, which is the principal owner of the townsite of Dawson. Mr. Botsford is in Skagway at the present time, a guest of the Fifth Avenue, on his way to Dawson.

Mr. Botsford spends his summers in Dawson, but most of his winters he spends in the East, where he lectures on Alaska and the Yukon, as well as caring for the business of his company.

Last winter Mr. Botsford offered a nugget pin to the pupil of the New York state normal school, who would write the best essay on Alaska and the Klondike. The pin was won by Miss Lois McDowell. Miss Ethel Angell, whose essay was given second place, did so well that Mr. Botsford gave her a duplicate pin. The essay of Miss McDowell was published in the Plattsburgh Republican.

Mr. Botsford will leave this morning or the interior.

FOURTH OF JULY AGAIN TO THE FRONT

General Committee Had Good Meeting Last Night—Big Prize for Baseball and Hose Race—Will Have Street Parade

The eagle gave several very loud shrieks at the meeting of the Fourth of July committee last night, and things are moving toward a satisfactory Fourth of July celebration. The soliciting committee was out again yesterday and reported a good sum raised, with many people yet to call upon. So far as seen, everyone has given liberally.

The sports committee made a partial report. It was decided to give $125 for the senior baseball contest and not less than $25 to the junior baseball game; $50 for a wet hose race, besides arranging for several minor sports.

The transportation committee look for a big crowd of our cousins from Whitehorse and along the White Pass route.

The committee on parade, will, next Monday, start the voting contest for the Goddess of Liberty. This promises to be a great election.

All efforts of the entertainment committee to provide a band for the parade have proved futile, Major Pitcher found a way out of the dilemma, by stating that six buglers, with new selections, would be furnished to head the parade. The elvie orders will be asked to participate and all merchants will be asked to prepare some kind of a float.

A prize contest is going to be arranged in which Indians alone will be allowed to contest.

As the matter now stands, the exercises, reading of the Declaration of Independence, oration and choruses, will take place in Elks' hall, at 11 o'clock a. m. This will be through in time to form for the parade, which will start not later than noon, provided the excursion train arrives by that time.

All the members of the general committee are doing their utmost.

The committee meets tomorrow night, when all arrangements will undoubtedly have been made.

Very likely those same saloon men of Juneau who are complaining so bitterly at the action of District Attorney Boyce for the threatened enforcement of the laws of congress, will protest against self-government and a territorial legislature for Alaska, when the senatorial committee shall reach this district.

The Kansas legislature has been called to convene in extraordinary session to provide for the relief of flood sufferers. There was more water in the Mississippi valley during the recent floods than ever before in the history of that country.

If the people of Alaska desire to have a government satisfactory to themselves, they should demand that they be accorded the right to make the laws which regulate the government. A territorial organization is obviously remedy.

The pictures of sweet girl graduates are almost as numerous in the exchanges at the present time as the cartoons of baseball players.

The work of the Fourth of July committee, which was very satisfactorily begun before election, was resumed with much enthusiasm last night.

WATER AS MEDICINE.

Help to Cure Dyspepsia if Taken in Sufficient Quantities.

A physician has called attention to the use of water not only as a remedial and therapeutic agent, but also as a mechanical agent in the treatment of certain forms of dyspepsia, especially those forms characterized by a fullness in the left epigastric region, with frequent eructations of sour or acid material, accompanied by loss of appetite, flatulency and a mental condition close allied to melancholia.

Let the patient drink from one to three pints of water one hour before each meal and then comfortably seat himself in an easy rocking chair and rock backward and forward for half an hour. The rocking will agitate the water in the stomach, wash the walls completely, detaching any mucus that may be adhering and dilute and mix the contents thoroughly. By this means absorption will be more rapid, and as a consequence the skin, kidneys and bowels will not more freely, eliminating from the blood uric acid and all effete and deleterious matter, while the stimulus of the water will cause the stomach to contract and gastric juice to be secreted in such quantity as to cause digestion to go on uninterrupted and painlessly.—Farm and Fireside.

A Historic Lemon.

Who ever thinks of connecting such a commonplace article of diet as the lemon with the romantic history of ill-fated Anne Boleyn? Yet indirectly she was the cause of its first introduction into England and so into popular notice. Henry VIII. gave such splendid feasts and presents in honor of the coronation of Anne and of their previous nuptials as had seldom been accorded to queens of the time. These kindly entertainments were in turn followed by the great civil feasts of London, for which the whole world was searched for delicacies to add to the splendor.

At one such banquet, graced by the presence of the royal pair, a lemon was introduced as an elegant novelty. To an epicure such as Henry the acquisition of a castle in France would have proved less acceptable, and such was the importance attached to the discovery—so says an old biographer—that a special record was made of the fact that the cost of this precious lemon was six silver pennies!

Birdlike Reptiles.

The most birdlike reptiles in the world are the beautiful iguanas of tropical America. The smallest members of this family, belonging to the genus Anolis, swarm in the bushes and trees of the West Indies and in many points resemble humming birds. Gossie in "A Naturalist's Sojourn in Jamaica" gives a vivid description of them. On a bright day hundreds of these brilliantly colored creatures may be seen on trees and fences, entertaining visitors by their gambols, leaping from branch to branch, fearlessly entering houses and even alighting on individuals. When irritated, they will suddenly change their brilliant colors for a dull, sooty brown.

Analogous to these, but not nearly so graceful, are the flying lizards of the old world. With hinder limbs prolonged to support a parachute-like expansion, these brightly marked reptiles are often mistaken for birds as they take flying leaps from tree to tree, for they are thoroughly arboreal.

THE END

Firemen Will Bury T. J. Doran.

At a special meeting of the Firemen last night it was decided that the department would take full charge of the funeral arrangements of their comrade T. J. Doran. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Catholic church.

Both companies of the department will meet this afternoon at 2:30 at the house of Hose Co. No. 1 on Sixth avenue. Major Pitcher will detail 12 or 15 men from Hose Co. No. 2 to assist No. 1. The hose cart will be draped in mourning and the coffin will be taken from the undertaking parlors to the church, thence to the cemetery.

All members of Hose Co. No. 1, who can, are asked to report at 3:30, sharp, this afternoon. Major Pitcher will have Hose Co. No. 2 fully represented. "Denny" Doran was one of the best known and best liked men about Skagway. He was a painter and paper hanger, and on account of his popularity as well as his capabilities, he was always kept at work.

Deceased was about 47 years of age, and came to Skagway from Seattle, where he had lived for many years. He leaves a wife and 14-year-old daughter, besides a host of friends to mourn his demise.

Cab a Burns Down

One of Dr. Rannall's cabs on the hill, near the reservoir, burned down yesterday afternoon. The other cab, adjoining caught on fire, but Tom Rannall got on the scene in time to turn the hose on and put the fire out. The loss was slight.

BILLIARDS FOR WOMEN.

According to Shakespeare, Cleopatra Played the Game.

In France a gentleman is not ashamed to take his wife to see a professional billiard game. Frenchwomen are good billiard players and like to see all the fancy shots made by professionals as soon as they begin to attract attention. They read the billiard news in the daily papers and subscribe to journals published especially for billiardists. According to Shakespeare, women have played billiards from the time of Cleopatra. In 30 B. C. she makes the Egyptian queen summon Cleopatra to billiards. Mary, queen of Scots, was an unusually fond of the game. On the evening preceding her execution she wrote to the archbishop of Glasgow that her billiard table had been taken away from her as a preliminary to her punishment. The Empress Josephine used to toss Napoleon on his gloomy moods by a game of billiards. Adeline Patti became disappointed in her English table and had one made in New York for which she paid $2,500.

The efficacy of billiards as a health restorer is beyond dispute. The motions gone through will reach every part of the body and operate on the entire system. They completely dispel languor and "that tired feeling." The tension of the muscles is tested and the blood sent in swifter circulation through the veins.

He Left the Stage at Hero.

At an auction sale that lasted for the best part of a week the auctioneer's throat began to trouble him greatly, and to save himself as much as possible he had one of his employees read off the number and name of each article as it came up for sale. The assistant's pronunciation of such words as "marqueterie," "Francois," "Sevres," "Delacroix" and "Beauvais" was so weird that the audience "got on to him," and all those who were not too busy engaged in making bids were reading their catalogues to follow the auctioneer's blunders. He met his Waterloo when he started to read "Bronze and ornate empire clock, set of three pieces, supported by Egyptian figures, chiseled." And as he came to a full stop the catalogue readers burst into a roar of laughter that was inexpressible to the rest of the audience. The word after "chiseled" which the assistant simply refused to have a try at was "hieroglyphics."—New York Press.

Fecundities of the Carnation.

The fecundities of the carnation are such that under cultivation it has been made to take almost any character as to color or form of flower desired by the careful cultivator. It has been very popular with one generation of men and equally unpopular with the next. When in favor, the flowers increased in size, and the varieties became numbered by the hundreds. At one time fringed petals were in great demand and were secured; at another the smooth edged petals only found acceptance.

Two hundred years ago the gardeners thought the flowers imperfect if the calyx did not burst, and refractory flowers were knifed into fashion's line. But during the last 150 years the burst calyx has been deemed a defect, yet all efforts to prevent it in large flowers have not been wholly successful.

Too Attractive.

"And here," said the salesman, "is a very fine umbrella. The handle, you will observe, is especially attractive." "That's just what I want to avoid. Every umbrella I ever owned has been entirely too attractive."

One Reason Why.

"She is very bright for one who has just lost her husband." "That's so; but you must remember that she is in the honeymoon of her widowhood."

After crosses and losses men grow humber and where.—Franklin.
