

THE OLIO.

WINTER.—By Bernard Barton.

Thou hast thy beauties, stormier ones I own,
Than those of thy precursors; yet to thee
Belong the charms of solemn majesty
And naked grandeur. Awful is the tone
Of thy tempestuous nights, when clouds
Are blown.

By hurrying winds across the troubled sky,
Pensive, when softer breezes faintly sigh.

Thro' leafless boughs, with ivy overgrown Thou hast thy decorations too, altho'
Though art austere; thy studded mantle, gay

With icy brilliants which so proudly glow
As erst Goldconda's; and thy pure array
Of regal ermine, when the drifted snow
Envelopes nature, till her features seem Like pale, but lovely ones, seen when we dream.
